million cubic yards of rock from a cliff here this morning. The explosion of 2,138,000 pounds of dynamite and nitrate fertilizer sent clouds of dust swirling hundreds of feet into the air The blast jarred bystanders as the rock crumpled from the 300foot-high cliff. The explosion was the fourth in a series set off to produce fill material for a causeway being built across Great Salt Lake, An employe of the Atlas Powder Co. pushed the plunger which set off the explosives, planted 2,600 feet into the cliff in tunnels.

What do you bid now?

A .- A vigorous bid is in order. Your er has shown the club control, you hould be convinced that there is a sam if partner does not have two losts in diamonds. This message can be provided by a bid of five hearts, which requests partner to bid a slam if he as second round control in diamonds, ither the king or a singleton. An alternate bid is five clubs, which should be construed as a cue bid showing the ing, rather than a desire to play at the minor suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

A.—While it is our policy to prefer a four card major to a five card minor in responding to a take-out double, we lean slightly in favor of the diamond response because it is a good five card suit as against a weak four card suit. Furthermore, the diamonds and Iran are starting direct sleeping car train service between Mostown at the level of one. Sustenance In The Space Age

So optimistic is the Air Force about the possibilities of space travel that it has begun studies of "food needs during space travel where journeys may be counted in weeks, or possibly in months or years." This is the latest task of an Air Force lieutenant colonel who has the unique assignment of developing means of providing nourishment to jet fliers while in flight.

Lt. Col. William D. Nettles, Air Force liaison officer at the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the armed forces in Chicago, says the problem of feeding modern fliers who speed through altitudes of 60,000 feet wrapped up in cumbersome suits and breathing dry oxygen is not an easy one.

'No matter how courageous and well-trained they are, if they become hungry their efficiency falls off and a multi-million-dollar craft is in danger of ending up as a heap of burned, twisted metal," explains the colonel. The problem has become particularly acute because of the dehydrating effects of breathing dry oxygen and the greatly extended flying time now available to jet pilots.

A device for feeding pilots liquids through a tube in their plastic masks has been in use for some time by the Air Force, but the problem now has become one of getting some solids or semisolids into the flier's stomach. Tests have shown liquids will satisfy hunger only up to 14 or 16 hours, according to Nettles.

All of which proves how complex modern living has become. Man still has to eat, but his modern vocations have complicated what once hower is one which is a great were the most elementary processes.

These Days

The Wheel Goes Round

Congress meets again. Its members are coming back into Washington from home where they have been listening to their constituents and now know that there is widespread discontent throughout the country for various reasons. Congress is returning in an unhappy frame of mind, particularly the Republicans who do not know what the answer is.

In 1928, the Republican Party was the majori arty of the United States; the population was still Oprevailingly rural and there was an enormous, if inflationary, prosperity in all the land. By 1932, it was The country was in the depth of the depression; poverty stalked about a third of the nation: cities and states were bankrupt. The Democrats came to power under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It was not until 1946 that the Republicans were returned to power in Congress in its 80th session. They had a majority, in the Senate and the House. Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio was the leader of the party in Congress and his coalition with a group of Southern Senators gave him really effective power. The President was Harry Truman who, in office, was not as respected as he has

The candidate for President in 1948 was Thomas E. Dewey, Governor of New York, who was not elected. This defeat gave the Democrats additional strength because Truman got rid, in his sedond term, of extremist left wing elements in the Democratic Party. Among Republicans, it was certain that Robert A. Taft would be elected to the Presidency.

However, Thomas E. Dewey and a group of businessmen, many of them not heretofore involved in Republican politics, selected General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was in Paris running NATO, to be the candidate. Eisenhower had never been a partisan; in fact, when his candidacy was first proposed, he had never voted in an election, as professional soldiers do not. In 1948, Harry Truman had given him consideration as the candidate for the Democratic Party when the wise consideration as the candidate for the Democratic Party when the wise men told Truman that he could not be elected. Eisenhower possessed no experience in civil administration or skill in party

Nevertheless, he was nominated and elected in 1952 by an enormous vote and entered upon his first term as one of the most popular of Presidents. If ever a man had a chance to rebuild a party, it was Eisenhower. However, he had no Republican traditions and there must be a vindictive strain in his nature because he soon showed a marked dislike for all the supporters of Robert A. Taft and General Douglas MacArthur. He appointed a mediocre New England Governor, Sherman Adams, as his political mentor and manipulator.

The Republicans controlled the Senate for the first two years of the Eisenhower Administration, but this period was wasted in an internecine war between Senator McCarthy and the White House, the consequence of which was that the Republicans soon lost their narrow majority in the Senate. Whereas Eisenhower won by an enormous majority, Republicans in Congress and Republican Governors did not do so well. In the 1954 Congressional election, the Republicans lost the Congress, as they did in 1956, when Eisenhower was again overwhelmingly elected.

One of the major political difficulties of the Eisenhower Administration is that men do not disappear as rapidly as it may be politically. desirable. In a word, most active Republicans are still men and women who antedate Eisenhower in their party and they are resentful of the so-called "Modern Republicans" who have come from nowhere into the party, whose names and faces are unknown to Republicans and some of whom have had, according to other Republicans, reprehensible careers in the New and Fair Deals. The result is that the party is everywhere split and factious and there is no leadership in Washington which is acknowledged throughout the land.

In fact, Sherman Adams has taken on an unpopularity which makes of him the party whipping boy, he being blamed for all the disasters that have befallen

So this is the party that President Eisenhower faces as Congress reassembles. Never in its history, not even in periods of total defeat, has the Republican Party been so weak and disunited. It is difficult to recall another example of a political party growing steadily weaker while its own President is in the White House.

Ike, Wilson Must Share Blame For Defense Cuts, Missile Lag

WASHINGTON - When ex-Secretary of Defense Charlie Wilson complained that someone was trying to make a "goat out of me" on our missile snafu, undoubtedly he had learned what this column published November 25-that Eisenhower officials had decided Charlie was to take the

Whether he deserves the rap is both interesting and important. A review of official statements by both Wilson and the President, plus scrutiny of backstage developments, indicates that Charlie is not exactly the protesting martyr he makes himself out to be. Yet he was no more to blame than Ike himself.

It is true, as Wilson says, that he urged a larger defense appropriation last summer than Eisenhower wanted. It is also true that while the armed services budget was under consideration by the House and Senate Conference Committee last summer, Wilson sent a confidential letter to GOP Senate leader Knowland that the Defense Department would accept the House economy cut of $2,200,000,000

This letter, though signed by Wilson, was sent at the direction of the President, even though on May 14, Ike had gone on a national radio-TV hookup to warn of the "terrible consequences" of cutting the defense budget, that this would be "taking a fearful gamble," that the USA must not 1955. go down "that foolhardy road

At Long Last, Some 'Impact' For The NSC?

By Stewart Alsop

Among the other decisions crowding in on President Eisendeal more important than it appears on the surface. He must approve or disapprove a proposal, which is before the National Security Council, for a new mechanism for measuring at all times just where this country and the Communist bloc stand in the cold war and the arms race.

The best way to understand the importance of this proposal is to recall the most dramatic and significant moment in the hearings before the Johnson Preparedness Subcommittee, when intelligence chief Allen Dulles was briefing the committee members.

The Senators listened glumly while Dulles recited the factsthat the Soviets had been testing ballistic missiles since 1952-53; that they had stockpited bundreds of operational medium range missiles; that the forward bases of the Strategic Air Force, except perhaps for the Spanish and Moroccan bases, were already subject to attack from operational Soviet IRBM sites: that the coastal areas of the United States were also subject to submarine-based missile attack: that the Soviets should have operational ICBMs and ICBM bases in the near future; and so on.

Then Sen. Stuart Symington. with an assist from other Senators, began asking the obvious questions. How long had the Central Intelligence Agency had such intelligence? The CIA began getting "hard" intelligence on Soviet missile progress as long ago as 4952. Dulles replied. Had the intelligence been made available to the National Security Council? Certainly. Why, then, had our own missile effort actually been Dulles replied frankly that the , the expression round dozen. CIA had "not been able to im-of the intelligence" which the CIA had had "for some time." Why not? At this point, Dulles cited the basic law under which the CIA was created. It was not the function of the CIA, he pointed out, to compare United States capabilities and the capabilities of the Soviet Union. On the contrary, the CIA was specifically enjoined from concerning itself with the American defense situation. The CIA was strictly confined to foreign intelligence. This is not, of course, the whole reason why the NSC was not 'impressed with the impact" of the CIA's intelligence. The basic tary of the Treasury George uum. want to be impressed.

But it was easy for the highest officials to believe their own complacent reassurances, because no one had the job of constantly comparing Soviet and American power in meaningful terms. Theoretically, this is the job of the NSC itself. But the members of the NSC are also the chief government policy-makers, and it is foolish in the nature of things to expect the policy-makers to sit in judgment over their own pol-

When these infants were delivered they began to breathe and cry just as soon as other babies. On the other hand, the mortality rate is slightly greater and this, plus the increased weight, is considered the only threat to the welfare of the unborn child in prolonged pregnancy.

It is a tough job for the obstetrician to decide whether to let well enough alone or to induce labor. His experience and judgment, as well as the mother's condition, determine his decision.

Smugniks vs. Warnings If you look at the public statements of both the President and his Secretary of Defense, they tell a story which needs no interpretation. Some observers have called their statements "smugniks." Here is the record of warnings and smugniks during the past three years: WARNING-"I felt that we were not making enough progress relative to our possible enemies. and further I felt that the level of support for air power and missiles was not adequate."-Trevor Gardner, missile executive of the Air Force, who resigned from the Eisenhower administration in protest over the missile lag.

SMUGNIK-"I think over-all we have no reason to believe that we are not doing everything that human science and brains and resources can do to keep our position in proper posture."-President Eisenhower at a press conference Feb. 8, 1956, following Gardner's resignation.

WARNING - "Only 7 per cent of the government's research and development funds are allocated to basic research.' -M.I.T. president James Killian, the man Ike has now made missile "czar," warned Congress in

WILSON SMUGNIK - "I am not much interested as a military project in why potatoes turn brown when they are fried," said Charlie Wilson in 1955, in opposing defense research.

IKE SMUGNIK - "With the shift in emphasis to the full exploitation of air power and modern weapons, we are in a position to support strong national security programs over an indefinite period with less of a drain on our manpower, material and financial resources."-Eisenhower in his budget message Jan. 21,

WILSON SMUGNIK - "More bang for a buck" was the way Wilson described the new look in defense policy, Oct. 17, 1955, after visiting Eisenhower in Colorado. The Eisenhower administration, he declared, was cutting down on military numerical strength by putting more emphasis on technological warfare.

EISENHOWER SMUGNIK -"We have improved the effectiveness and combat readiness of our forces by developing and making operational new weapons and by integrating the latest scientific developments into our military plans. We continue to push the production of the most modern military aircraft. The development of long-range missiles has been on an accelerated basis' for some time." - Eisenhower, Jan. 6, 1956, state-of-the-union message. Thus the soothing syrup given the public by the President and his Secretary of Defense was about even-Stephen.

Barrage Of Smugniks After the Russians launched their sputnik October 4, a whole barrage of reassuring smugniks came from administration leaders. Here they are:

Ex-secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, October 17: "The real danger of the sputnik is that some too-eager people may now demand hasty and sensational action, regardless of cost and relative merit, in an attempt to surpass what they have done." Americans "must never lose our sense of balance and proportion.13 Senator Goldwater, October 17:

'We are 10 years away from a truly intercontinental ballistics missile, and I am sure we will have it before the Russians do." Sherman Adams, October 16 in San Francisco: "The administration is not interested in a high score in an outer space basketball game." Jim Hagerty: "We never thought of our program as one which was in a race with the Soviet's. Secretary of Defense Wilson: "Of course, the Defense Department was interested in the pro-

Dulles Enemies

By David Lawrence

should be loved for the enemies he has made, it is John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State. He should be the "man of the year" in world affairs - not Nikita Khrushchev.

For, while it may be plausible to choose the Communist dictator as the "devil of the year" on the basis of the amount of evil he has been responsible for in making news throughout 1957, it is important that the man who has stood up for morality should be given even greater recognition. The American Secretary of State represents the conscience of the world today. He believes, for instance, that when the government of the United States drafts its youth for a defensive war in Korea-under the auspices of the United Nations-and then 142,000 casualties result, these young men who made the sacrifice should not be forgotten and that the aggressor-Red Chinashould not be rewarded by being given diplomatic recognition or a seat in the United Nations Security Council.

The critics sometimes call Dulles a "stern-faced Presbyterian." as if there were something wrong nowadays in being stern in dealing with gangsters and criminals in world affairs.

The demand for the resignation of Dulles, when voiced by some of the Democratic Party politicians, is understandable. It is part of their tactics of harassing the Administration. But the forces behind these politicians both here and abroad are worth noting. Here are some of the enemies made by the Secretary of State and the reasons for the enmities:

1. Dulles is hated by the Communists because he has been un-He insists on international guarantees that mean something. He doesn't trust the men in the Kremlin. So the propaganda distributed every day and night throughout Asia and Eastern Europe by shortwave radio stations controlled by Moscow keeps hammering away at him? Americans should be proud of a man who has earned this kind of

2. Dulles is disliked by commercial interests in Great Britain which maneuvered their own government into recognizing Red China and now want restrictions relaxed so that they can get more trade. Americans should be pround of a man who puts moral principle above materialism.

3. Dulles was excoriated in the British press because he didn't let the British go ahead with their ill-fated military expedition into Egypt in 1956. He has never been forgotten for delivering a blow to British pride. It doesn't matter evidently that the British and French nearly went bankrupt and were ill-prepared for long years of guerrilla warfare

WASHINGTON-If ever a man in the Middle East, but Dulles is the scapegoat now. The refrain is that "he didn't let us finish the job in Suez." The truth is he prevented a global war, and privately many diplomats in Europe agree with him on that issue. A man who helped to prevent a big war should win world-wide acclaim, not denunciation.

4. Dulles is hated in many parts of Asia because he refuses to agree to the admission of Red China into the United Nations and to American diplomatic recognition of the Peiping government. But he is applauded in other parts of Asia, where it is firmly believed that recognition of Red China would mean a breakdown in morale and abandonment of the 1,000,000 or more soldiers in Korea, the Philippines, Formosa and Japan. They stand today as a bulwark of the free world against the Commun. ists in the Far East.

5. Dulles is hated in the Middle East by Nasser, who played a double game-secretly negotiating arms deals with Moscow while negotiating for American funds to build the Aswan Dam. But Dulles exposed the duplicity of Nasser and steered a wise course in the United Nations to keep the Arabs from destroying Israel. Yet in New York City there are influential political elements which are antagonistic to Dulles because they feel he has not been a vehement partisan of

6. Finally, there are financial interests which stand to profit by the export of more dollars to the rest of the world in the form of grants and loans to carry on "bold and imaginative policies" in the "neutral" and "uncommitted" countries. Because Dulles has some regard for the limits of the American taxpayers' pocyielding. He refuses to surrender. * ketbook, he is despised in certain financial quarters in New York, London and Paris. This is the kind of enmity an American Secretary of State ought to be proud to have earned.

John Foster Dulles is a thoroughgoing American who believes that the United States should be guided by its conscience in world affairs and should not encourage gangsterism or the exploitation of weak and undeveloped countries by imperialists. He is convinced that moral force can win the support of right-thinking people throughout the world and that meanwhile a strong military force, capable of massive retaliation, is the best deterrent of aggression: What would some other Secretary of State propose for American policy? What in the present course would he reverse? As long as John Foster Dulles is in office, there is an assurance that America stands for unequivocal adherence to moral principle as against surrender to a ruthless dictatorship in Moscow.

Free-For-All Marks Victory Of St. Louis

Police Are Called, Two Players Ejected

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5 A - Two players were banished from the floor after a free-for-all broke up a basketball game today which the St. Louis Hawks finally won 95-93 over the Detroit Pistons. The National Basketball Assn.

game was a wild one throughout.

The fight started in a scramble between Detroit's George Yardley and the Hawk's Jack McMahon. Punches were thrown all over the court as both benches emptied and when order was finally restored, with the help of police, referee Mendy Rudolph ejected Charley Share of St. Louis and Joe Holup of Detroit.

Mr. Haberlein said Fred Taylor of Oldtown has conferred with him on organizing the unit. A meeting will be held in the near future, according to Mr. Haber lein, who said officials of the as sociation will lay the groundwork and outline the formation of a volunteer company.

Heretofore, volunteer firemen from North Branch have been answering calls in the Oldtown area. At present the association is comprised of 30 companies throughout the two counties.

The meeting yesterday was opened with prayer by Felix Foote. of Lonaconing, chaplain of the association. All the officers and representatives of 20 companies attended the meeting.

Inspector Shows Film William Chenoweth, state fire coordinator, was a guest at the meeting and showed a film en titled "The Use of Foam." Mr Haberlein reported that an in stallation of association officers was held December 28 at the Cor-takes shape as workmen strive to have the structure completed in time for Easter services. The new brick church replaces the old frame structure which was destroyed by fire on the afternoon of October 7, 1956. Five firemen were slightly injured fighting the blaze which gutted the old building. Rev.

New Church Takes Shape

Linus E. Robinson, pastor, said the new building will cost approximately $75,000 in addition to furnishings for the interior. The walls, decorations and furnishings are still to be completed. Part of the cost of the new building was defrayed by contributions from other Catholic parishes in the area. The church is a mission of St. Peter's Church in Westernport.
